

Spirit House – A Three Dimensional Pop-Up Model

Friday, June 21, 2013

Strong Arm Bindery

28 Fore St. - Suite 8

Portland, Maine 04101

10am to 4:30pm

$100 NEGBW members

$125 Non-members

$5 materials fee, to be collected at the workshop

Anyone who has travelled in Southeast Asia cannot but be intrigued by the spirit house shrines that are everywhere – in houses, gardens, shops and businesses. The spirit house - intended to provide a shelter for spirits - is normally in the form of a miniature house or temple, and is mounted on a pillar or on a dais. In this workshop you will make a 3D pop-up spirit house from paper. There are no folds – the whole structure (comprising over thirty separate parts) is made from hinges and dovetails joints and will fold down flat.

Spirit House – A Three Dimensional Pop-Up Model with Paul Johnson

Friday, June 21, 2013, Strong Arm Bindery

A check will hold your spot. Please make it out to: The Guild of Book Workers

Mail the check to: Todd Pattison 354 N. Main Street #302 Andover, MA 01810

Cancellations one month prior will receive a full refund.

Name _____

Email _____

Phone number _____

Questions? Email Todd Pattison: bookandtile@att.net

British educator and book artist Dr. Paul Johnson has an international reputation for his pioneering work in developing literacy through the book arts. As an artist he uses brilliant industrial fabric dyes on mould made watercolor paper to create a style that is uniquely his own. He has developed and taught more than a dozen different workshops on three-dimensional books and has pioneered the use of various paper joints to eliminate folding paper in pop-up structures.